Our activities

Programmes of reforestation and community agroforestry

We develop reforestation programmes with local populations. They generate multiple benefits for involved communities and donor partners that support them.

Programmes of damaged ecosystems restoration

Mangroves, eroded watersheds or destroyed forests that benefit intensive agriculture are a few examples of ecosystems where we take action.

Programmes of biodiversity conservation

We conduct beekeeping and Melipona cultivation projects, as well as ancestral medicinal projects from indigenous communities.

Pedagogical projects

The “My class, my forest” project teaches children from 7 to 12 about the conservation of forests and biodiversity. It can also be adapted for adults.
